Hold Hearing On State Park Sewer

No decision is made on who will sewer the northern portion of D. L. Bliss State Park, and the Jan. 1, 1970, deadline for connecting to sewage export lines in the Lake Tahoe basin will not be met.

This situation was learned at an all-day meeting on Friday at South Tahoe Public Utility District (STPUD) offices at South Lake Tahoe.

The meeting was requested by state Sen. Stephen Teale, D-Railroad Flat, and Assemblyman Eugene Chappie, R-Cool, both of California, to learn the status of plans for total sewage export from the basin and how much money is needed to accomplish the goal.

Tahoe City Public Utility District (TCPUD) and STPUD both watn to sewer northern Bliss park area.

Ford B. Ford, assistant administrator of the California Resources Agency, said reports from sewer districts were solicited earlier this year to learn the costs and timetables for sewering state parks on the west shoreline.

Data shows TCPUD should serve the Sugar Pine Point area and the northern portion of Bliss park, leaving the area south of Emerald Bay for STPUD. Emerald Bay is inside Bliss park.

Based on the reports, Ford said, the state plans a deadline of 1969-70 to sewer Sugar Pine Point and 1970-71 to sewer Bliss park.

Ford said California officials fear excessive destruction of natural resources if STPUD serves northern Bliss park.

Two men said, after the meeting, that various state agencies are exerting pressure to stop STPUD from serving that area because it probably would require a sewer line across Emerald Bay, apparently the simplest route for STPUD to reach the northern portion of the park.

STPUD officials said they can serve the area for less cost than can TCPUD.

STPUD could sewer Bliss park by December, 1969, if the state gives permission by Dec. 1, said Harlan Moyer, engineer for STPUD.

William Layton, manager of TCPUD, said his district will need $2 million in state funds just to lay a trunk sewer line from Timberland, near Sunnyside, to the north end of the park.

Total cost of that line is estimated at $4.4 million, Layton said, and engineering plans and deadlines hang on when the state can furnish the money.

Said Joh Weidman, attorney for STPUD, "STPUD could sewer all areas north of Emerald Bay to the Placer County "without a request for state loan funds."

Moyer questioned cost estimates TCPUD supplied to the state. He suggested they are not final figures, but are based on interim sewage treatment and export plans. Ultimately, if TCPUD serves the area, costs could be far higher, Moyer said.

He stressed that STPUD filed cost estimates based on a permanent sewage treatment plant and export facility now operating.

Weidman demanded a policy statement from California officials on the proposed 1970 deadline, that STPUD intends to meet.

He commented that for 10 years state officers have stalled on plans to preserve the lake. "Are we going to (continue) to postpone, postpone, and postpone, or are we going to take a stand and do it?" Weidman asked.

Both Ford and Kerry Mulligan, executive officer of the California Water Resources Control Board, said they consider Jan. 1, 1970, the deadline.

Mulligan said his agency will support giving funds only to thise districts who can meet the 1970 deadline, and that TCPUD will not get his agency's financial support for the timberland-to-Bliss park sewer line if the deadline cannot be met.

Ford and Larry Cenotta, administrative assistant to Chappie, said after hearing these comments, that they want to see new cost estimates on serving the Timberland to Emerald Bay area.

Teale said a decision must be reached by Dec. 1 on who will do the sewering in order to request necessary financial aid at the next session of the California legislature.

Principal comments made at the meeting follow:

— John T. Leggett, executive officer of the Lahontan Regional Water Quality Control Board: The policy of the board and of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration is sewage export from the basin by 1970.

"All of California's major export facilities will be completed by November, 1969. (But) the task remaining is to extend the collection facilities to include all developed areas and to promote connection to the facilities when they become available."

"There appears to be no need for legislation to give the state a stronger hand to require total export."

Within five to seven years sewage disposal facilities at the lake's north end will be used to capacity. Therefore the Lake Tahoe-Truckee Master Sewerage System plan for a sewer trunk line along the Truckee River must be completed. But it will cost $13.3 million, money that is now unavailable.

There are cases of isolated homes and residences in residential districts that are still using septic tanks. This problem will be resolved by enforcing hook-up to sewer trunk lines as they become available or by requiring such means as hauling out sewage by truck as an interim measure.

The California Water Code gives authority to local sewer districts to require residents to connect with trunk sewage lines.

— J. Allen Bray, chairman of the California-Tahoe Regional Planning Agency: The agency supports the 1970 deadline and is adopting ordinances to regulate disposal of wastes accumulated in the basin. The agency "is still in the position of being unable to buy a postage stamp" because state monies that were made available for operation of the agency have not arrived.

Kerry Mulligan, executive officer of the California Water Resources Control Board: Administrative details are being worked out so the agency can get the money.

Russell Culp, general manager of the STPUD, and Moyer: STPUD is fully operative with capacity to serve the south shore for 10 years. Some residents still use septic tanks but are asked to connect to sewage trunk lines as soon as possible.

By Jan. 1, 1970, sewage collection lines will be available to all but remote areas.

Ernest Gregory, chief of the Nevada Division of the Bureau of Environmental Health: plans for the Nevada side of the lake are for sewage treatment plants to operate by the 1970 deadline. Sewage collection systems, will be developed later.

Incline Village General Improvement District will export by 1970. A new treatment plant is operating at Round Hill to serve the south end of the lake.

Treated effluent is being collected at Roung Hill but will not be exported to Carson Valley for 40 days, when a sufficient amount will be available. Some Carson Valley farmers are objecting to exportation plans. The reasons for the objection are unclear.

Crystal Bay area, divided by the state line, probably will be served by the NTPUD because "for some reason" Incline Village General Improvement District refuses to negotiate with Crystal Bay residents.

No plans are made for sewering the area from Sand Harbor to Glenbrook. Some of the land may be taken by the state for parks.

California Sen. Stephen P. Teale, D-Railroad Flat: "Flatlanders" in California cannot understand why residents at the lake must have state aid for sewage disposal. They think lake area residents should pay their own way.

Teale was told by local officials that a person at the lake pays eight to 10 times as much for sewage service as a resident of a metropolitan area due to export costs. For instance, STPUD exports its effluent through a 27-mile long pipeline over a 1,500-foot high mountain pass.

— Thomas E. Llewellyn, general manager of the NTPUD: By November, 1969, the district will be exporting effluent for all but those residents who do not wish to connect to sewage lines or who are in remote areas. Legal means can be used to effect hook-up where feasible.

All other sewer districts on the California side have successfully been aided by federal grants. With the exception of one federal grant, NTPUD's work has been done with local funds.

One Man's Opinion

By CARL BRIGGS

Chicago was always like that.

A tough, violent town, with its unique and distasteful image of mobsterism and graft and ward politics only thinly disguised by a superficial facade of bustling "big shoulder" industry.

And suddenly, in retrospect, Miami and the Republican convention no longer seem so ludicrous.

"Shock" and "disgust" are the impressions voiced most often concerning the Democratic convention but, oddly, there are two distinct sources: Shock and disgust because the demonstrators in downtown Chicago did in fact demonstrate and managed to achieve sympathy from some delegates on the floor of the convention; and shock and disgust because of police "overkill," the largely unnecessary busting of a lot of heads, the pushing around of newsmen, delegates, and bystanders, and the general display of fear and hate that is permeating our society.

It rather depended on your point of view and your politics, I suppose. Almost everybody agrees, however, that our nation is badly in need of a change, in fact many changes. It becomes increasingly apparent these changes can be brought about only by a Republican administration.

Mr. Humphrey espouses change, "a new era," but he is and perhaps will always be too much a Johnson man to really give us anything but a Johnson administration, or something very similar.

Mr. Nixon is still Mr. Nixon, a prospect that doesn't exactly thrill everybody, but the need for change perhaps overshadows the weaknesses of the man.

And so the battle lines form, and out of the chaos we have endured for too many years one can only hope for reform, for some positive return to sanity, and peace, and economic stability.

* * *

One of the fascinating political battles of recent times in California has been immortalized in book form and is titled, "The Sinking Of The Lollipop." It is, of course, the story of the 1967 primary battle between Shirley Temple Black and Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey, both Republicans, for a seat in the U.S. Congress. It is by Rodney G. Minott, a college person, and has been published by Diablo Press, Inc., 440 Pacific Avenue., San Francisco. The price is $5.95.

No information is available regarding movie rights, but possibilities dazzle the imagination. Doris Day in the part of Shirley Temple. Maybe Rock Hudson as Pete McCloskey, and Fred Astair as Shirley's dancing — I mean political — coach, and maybe we could get Ronald Reagan to play the part of the governor, and George Murphy would be great as . . .

An interesting sidelight has developed concerning the naming of old Highway 40. There will be a public hearing Friday night to consider naming a portion of the Route "Pla-Vada Way," a handle proposed by real estate developers in an area west of Donner Summit.

Considerable public support has been heard to name it "Emigrant Way," as the Truckee portion is called, but now there is word from Donner Summit that residents of that area don't like . "Emigrant Way" either. They will reportedly be at the meetindg to protest.

Walt says no matter what you name it, the road will always be called "old Highway 40" locally.

Sign Bi-State Water Compact

RENO — Gov. Paul Laxalt and Ronald Reagan have promised their "full support" in obtaining final approval of a California-Nevada Interstate Compact dividing Sierra waters between the two states.

That assurance came Thursday at a special meeting of the compact commission for formal signing of the document allocating between the states the waters of Lake Tahoe and the Truckee, Carson and Walker rivers. Final agreement came July 25, more than 13 years after the creation of the joint commission.

Laxalt promised commissioners of both states he would work hard to persuade the legislature early next year to ratify the compact. That is the next step before the document can be sumbitted to Congress for its consent.

Robert G. Eiland of Sacramento, speaking on behalf of Reagan, said the California governor was " particularly and personally pleased" with the compact and pledged "California will work hand in hand with Nevada in obtaining final approval of this compact."

The document was signed by members of both state commissions, but not by the chairman, Federal Representative John R. Riter of Denver. He explained "I am not informed as to the federal position."

Hubert B. Bruhs of Alpine County, chairman of the California half of the commission, set the tone for the meeting when he declared "It is better to take 12 years to write a good compact than six years to write a poor compact."

It was a meeting of complete harmony in sharp contrast to some of the bitter exchanges between states and individual commissioners which occurred periodically during the more than 60 formal negotiation meetings before final agreement was reached.

The compact is certain to meet strong opposition in some federal agencies which object to the United States being forced to abide by some of its terms. But both states argue if the federal government refuses to be bound by its terms, there is no need for a compact because there is no surplus, or unused water, to be divided between the states.

It was stressed at the meeting, the compact simply divides the waters between the states. It does not provide for individual users, leaving that problem to decision under terms of existing water law in each state.

Average negotiation time for a compact is slightly is excess of 11 years. But those generally have been for a single river system and partically none in areas as water defficient as those covered by the California-Nevada document allocating between the states the waters of a large bi-state lake and three separate river systems.

Water is allocated in terms of acre feet—enough water to cover one acre one foot deep. The Lake Tahoe Basin gets a 34,000 acre foot no strings attached diversion right, far more than present use. Of that amount, 23,000 goes to California and 11,000 to Nevada.

The top Truckee priority is for 30,000 acre feet for irrigation use on the Pyramid Lake Pauite Indian Reservation. Then California gets 16,000 acre feet of the river's flow as the second priority and the rest goes to Nevada.

COMPACT SIGNING — William F. Becholdt of Tahoe City and Edward M. Peckham, Reno, signed a California-Nevada Interstate Compact dividing Sierra waters between the two states Thursday. Becholdt is one of three original members of the California Compact Commission and Peckham is the only Nevadan on the commission who has served all 13 years. Also present during signing ceremonies were John R. Riter, Denver, federal representative and joint commission chairman, and Charles R. Renda, Sacramento, legal adviser.

New Tahoe Railroad Buys Nine More Cars

South Lake Tahoe's new recreational railway company will acquire seven flat cars and two box cars from the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad in Colorado, according to Bob Keller, a company official.

The flat cars will be converted to open-style passenger cars and renovation of the box cars will provide both atmosphere and storage space for gear during construction of the SLT railway.

Keller said a variety of scarce locomotive parts needed to restore the new line's two engines were obtained.

Keller, John Allan and Prof. Steve Polkinghorn, of the Tahoe project, traveled to Alamosa, Colo., to purchase the equipment. If D & RGW's narrow-gauge Alamosa to Durango branch is abandoned, further purchases may be made, Keller said.

Change Time For Jeep Ride

Plans for the Truckee-Donner Historical Society jeep ride to post markers on the Emigrant Trail, originally scheduled for Saturday, have been changed to Sunday, September 15.

The new meeting place is Smart's Cafeteria at the Intersection of Highway 89 and old Highway 40. The time is 9 a.m.

Low Bid $87,000 For Truckee Park

An apparent low bid of $87,000 was submitted last night for construction of facilities and improvements at the Truckee River Park south of here.

The bid from James C. Robinson of Newcastle, Placer County, was by far the lowest of three sealed bids opened by directors of the Truckee - Donner Recreation and Park District. The next lowest was $166,927.

The directors will meet again at 8 p.m. and, it was indicated, award a contract to Robinson if his bid is in order.

The work involves some 50 acres in the park on California 267. It includes site grading, an artificial lake, parking lots, rest rooms, landscaping, an irrigation system, and water, sanitary and electric facilities.

Small Fires Alert Crews

Fire fighters from both the Truckee Volunteer Department and the forest service were summoned to two separate fires in the Donner Lake area Thursday evening but fortunately neither caused damage and were quickly extinguished.

The first, involving the forest service suppression crew, was in Lakeview Canyon south of Donner Lake near the railroad where a grass and brush fire threatened.

The second was near Cold Stream in the brush and dry grass and brought out the volunteer department. This was also quickly put out without damage.

Causes of both fires were undetermined immediately.

Kings Beach Fire Destroys Cottage

A fire Thursday night gutted the inside of a cottage at 8745 Minnow St., Kings Beach. Furnishings as well as the personal belongings of tenant Samuel Hobart were destroyed.

The cottage was unoccupied at the time of the fire. Assistant Fire Chief Curtis Hart said cause of the fire has not been determined. He said the call was received about 11 p.m. Nineteen volunteer firemen responded to assist firemen in bringing the blaze under control.

Lee Mayer is manager of the cottages where the fire was confined to one unit. George Warren is owner.

Hospital Board Candidates

Two vacancies on the Tahoe Forest Hospital Board of Directors will be filled in a district election to coincide with the general election on November 5.

Directorships to be filled are those currently held by William Vail, of Soda Springs, and Dr. Gardner Pier, of Squaw Valley.

Four applicants have filed nomination papers for the two positions: William Vail; Joseph Aguera, Truckee; Ray Huston, Squaw Valley; and Dr. E. O. Hendrickson, Donner Lake. Dr. Pier did not file for re-election.

Hold Gebhardt Service

Last rites were held Friday at 2 p.m. in the Christ the King Lutheran Church at Dollar Point, Lake Tahoe, for Robert C. Gebhardt, 32, prominent Lake Tahoe and Truckee contractor, who was a victim of a tragic boating accident near Tahoe City Sept. 2.

Rev. William Dowling, pastor of the church, officiated at the rites and burial was in the Trails End cemetery at Tahoe City. The Truckee Tahoe Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Gebhardt was a native of Milwaukee, but had lived in this area since 1962 and operated a thriving construction business.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto C. Gebhardt, who live in the east; two sons, Robert and Peter and a daughter, Kathy, all of Dollar Point; two brothers, Otto and Richard; two sisters, Betty Gebhardt and Mrs. Carolyn Weisel.

Gebhardt was believed instantly killed when his power boat and a cruiser operated and owned by Jordan Carlton of Tahoe and Piedmont collided just off the old Tahoe Tavern pier at Tahoe City. The seven occupants of the cruiser were rescued, but Gebhardt's smaller craft was demolished and sank immediately.

Two memorial funds have been established for the popular young contractor. One is for the Tahoe City Library and the second a Robert C. Gebhardt Scholarship Fund at Dartmouth University.

Burial For Lloyd Cole

Lloyd Woodward Cole, 80, who built and operated the King Cole Chalet at Donner Lake since 1961, died here Sept. 3 following a two-year illness. Following cremation, the ashes were taken to Alta Mesa near Palo Alto for burial with the Truckee Tahoe Mortuary handling the arrangements.

Cole was a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., born Nov. 17, 1889 but came to Berkeley, Calif., with his parents at the age of six months. Following his schooling, he was employed as a mining engineer at Lincoln for many years and then moved to Burlingame where he became a structural engineer.

He moved to Glendale in 1927 and worked for Gladding McBean until 1954 when he went to San Carlos, coming to Truckee in 1961.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. H. G. Williams, who, with her husband are operating the King Cole Chalet; grandchildren, Mrs. Dave Tooker of Los Angeles, Emily Nack of Pasadena and Alan Williams of Truckee.

Stampede Expects 1970-71 Operation

Stampede Dam and Reservoir on the Little Truckee River is expected to be in operation in 1970-71 and "by that time operating agreements and repayment contract will be completed."

That was the highlight of the annual report submitted by the Carson - Truckee Water Conservancy District to Dist. Judge Frank Gregory of Carson City. The district is the official agency responsible for paying the federal government the reimbursable costs of the multi-million-dollar Washoe Reclamation Project.

The report informed the judge "Construction of Stampede Dam by the Ray Kizer Construction Co. and R. A. Heintz Construction Co. is proceeding despite the fact that a repayment contract has not been finalized.

"The district is contemplating the sale of municipal and industrial water made available by the Stampede project to Sierra Pacific Power Co. for distribution in the Reno-Sparks area.

"No contract has been completed. However, Sierra Pacific Power Co. has expressed by letter its intent to purchase the water. Final negotiation of a contract awaits the completion of the U.S.-district contract," the judge was told.

Directors also declared they "are considering the possibility of dealing with potable water. This is, at present, the water would be sold and delivered in the natural river channel, the diversion and treatment to be handled by the purchaser.

"There is a possibility that the district could provide a service to the area by providing transmission and treatment facilities and sell potable water at a price that would finance the construction of the facilities as well as the repayment to the federal government."

The document also contained a report of a district audit by Kafoury, Armstrong, Bernard and Bergstrom accounting for expenditure of $39,261 in the last fiscal year.

Tomorrow, Sept. 12, will be the final date for residents to be registered to vote in the general election on Nov. 5. Representative Harold T. Johnson has mailed notices to voters throughout his district advising them on registration and voting and we repeat portions of his message as a guide.

You are eligible to vote if you are a citizen of the United States, at least 21 years of age. (If you will be 21 on or before election day, you may register before the registration deadline); a resident of California for one year, your county for 90 days, your precinct for 54 days; duly registered.

California has premanent registeration, therefore, you have to register only if you: have not registered in California before; have moved; wish to change your party affiliation; failed to vote in the last general election and did not fill out and return the card sent you after the election by the registrar.

The important thing is to be qualified before tomorrow night and then plan to vote at the election on Nov. 5.

With the opening of schools, hundreds of children will be frequenting the streets and roads throughout the area and drivers — particularly those youngsters driving cars between school and home — should exercise more than normal caution.

The young children are thoughtless and careless about cars and frequently dash into the street to recover a lost ball or just for the idea of being footfree. It's up to the driver to go slower and be especially watchful where children may be playing. It takes only a split second to cause a tragic accident, one which can just as easily be avoided, so for the sake of the children and yourself, drive slow and carefully.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, SIERRA SUN:

My first interest in the Donner Pass dates back to 1926 when I was privileged to ride horseback with an "old timer" on the really first Emigrant Trail that goes behind Donner Lake and up over the Pass – where we could still see the scars on the granite where the Emigrant wagons had been pulled up over almost sheer cliffs.

I have driven every year since then on succeeding "Emigrant Trails" over the Pass – on all the variantions and improvements of "Old Highway 40" from where it goes along the south side of the Yuba River this side of Rainbow (where you can still see the built-up walls of its foundation above the river) to the new improved "wide" Highway 40 that came after.

I was up sketching on that beautiful Pass only yesterday, and the feeling of history that has always clung to that road is still there, and I trust always will be.

It was therefore with interest that I read in your last week's Sun that the Nevada County Planning Commission is holding a meeting on September 13 to consider changing the name of "Old Highway 40" to "Emigrant Way," which seems most appropriate and in line with the considerable interest shown in recent years in encouraging museums and pioneer societies here to organize more carefully the great wealth of material in this area.

I was therefore horrified at the thoroughly commercial and irrelevant suggestion of the name, "Pla-Vada Way."

Has anyone yet suggested "Soda Springs Boulevard," "Rainbow Road," or "Norden Drive?" I am a resident of Placer County, having had a house at Brockway for 35 years, but I am hoping that the Nevada County Planning Commission will accept letters from counties other than their own, so I am writing a letter to them regarding the above.

This would seem to me to be a matter of great concern for the entire area.

(Editor's Note: The following letter was addressed to Mr. John Gallegos, Chairman, Nevada County Chamber of Commerce, with a copy to the Sierra Sun)

DEAR MR. GALLEGOS:

At the meeting held recently at the Donner Lake Lodge, it was suggested that the district chambers submit a budget requirement for funds soom.

As I stated at the meeting, we have projects of utmost importance and all require money. I know your funds are limited, but we would like to apply for money for our much needed brochure. We would therefore like to realize $550.00 from the county to assist us in this project. We will spend approximately $1,700 on the brochure and I feel we should have a little help from the county chamber.

Other projects will be map signs placed strategically on all entraces to the Truckee-Donner area; maps for tourists for locating recreation centers in the eastern area of Nevada County; relocation of our chamber office and the possible hiring of personnel to man it. This is an ambitious program, but at least we have a goal.

EDITOR, SIERRA SUN:

Before I leave for Washington, D.C. and for the resumption of the final session of the 90th Congress, I did want to express my deep appreciation for the newspapers co-operation during my visit to El Dorado County.

In three short weeks I visited 16 of the 20 counties which make up the Second Congressional District, touring industrial and agricultural facilities meeting with the local officials, chambers of commerce, civic and other groups. The tour was extremely interesting and informative, as I was able to discuss local, national and international issues with a great many people.

I also want to take this opportunity to express my deep appreciation for the accurate and fair reporting of congressional matters, not only during the month of August but throughout all of this year and all the time I have served as your Representative in Congress. You are to be commended for this reporting. Keep up the good work.

Looking forward to seeing you again soon.

GENE CHAPPIE REPORTS 6th ASSEMBLY DISTRICT

The legislature returned to Sacramento on September 9, obstensibly to consider overriding gubernatorial vetoes. But no vetoes will be overridden, and it is likely that we will quickly turn our attention to items Governor Reagan has placed on special call.

This is the second "veto" session since 1966 when voters approved a constitutional amendment requiring the Legislature to return 30 days after adjournment of the regular session to reconsider any bills the governor has refused to sign. Veto overrides, however, are rare. They require a two-thirds vote in both houses and it is seldom possible to generate that much support, especially when the governor's own party controls half the seats in the Senate and 38 of the 80 seats in the Assembly. As a rule, this extra session will be a totally meaningless, but rather expensive, ritual. In any case, it is unnecessary.

1966 was also the year that annual sessions were established. So if the Legislature wants to override a veto it can do so during the regular session, and if the session has already adjourned (as in the present situation) the bill can be resubmitted at the next session, which will never be more than a few months away. Thus, a mandatory veto session is not necessary to balance the executive and legislative powers.

The Legislature may be able to justify some of the time and expense this year by taking up unfinished business. Governor Reagan has already cleared the way for action on workmen's compensation legislation which was still pending when the Legislature adjourned on August 3. And there is still reason to hope for reconsideration of a property tax relief bill and additional funding for the Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

It should be noted, however, that the governor will not include these latter items on the agenda unless legislative leaders can promise something more than endless debate. Property tax relief, for example, would already be a reality if the Democratic leadership in the two houses had been willing to reach a workable compromise during the regular session.

I authored the major property tax relief measure of the session, AB 1590, and was greatly displeased by the attitudes of legislators who sabotaged this program. Tax relief had been promised by the Legislature, and the obstructionist tactics of the opposition amounted to an act of bad faith.

"Jakarta – One hundred thousand people jammed the stadium to see gladiator Bandot Lahardo fight a lion to the death!"

This article in a San Francisco newspaper spoiled our day. Seems when this fight was set to go, Lahardo dressed in a loincloth and, unarmed, was about to do this fierce lion in.

Apparently the lion had more sense than Lahardo and refused to fight. The crowd went wild with anger. To appease them, a bull was brought in to do battle with Lahardo. The bull must have been a friend of the lion, as he immediately gored Lahardo and sent him to the hospital.

Such a row has been raised by the paying customers that the promoters have decided to give the lion another chance. A free show will be held when Lahardo gets out of the hospital. Perhaps if we hold good thoughts, the lion will get in the first bite and end this sort of exhibition.

While driving from Truckee to Tahoe City with Lahardo and the lion still on our minds, we stopped to watch four large carriers unload about 4,000 sheep. What a job the two sheepdogs did, with the help of their masters – and a small donkey – keeping the sheep off the highway and heading them for the hills west of the Truckee, where they are now grazing.

We are going to watch them reload for the return trip to lower pastures just before snow time. Anyone lucky enough to catch this operation will get a real thrill.

As we drove along the Truckee to Tahoe City, we felt this had to be the most beautiful drive in the world. The river must be full of whoppers, as the fishermen let so many big ones get away.

So back to the gas pumps and questions asked by our visitors, such as, "When will it snow?" "When will the snow leave?" "Why do we need antifreeze if we're only staying one night?" "How come the Truckee River runs uphill from Big Chief to Alpine Meadows?" We checked this one out. Sure looks like the River runs the wrong way in the early evening.

The summer visitors were great. We're looking forward to the winter season. Bless their hearts. We love them all as long as they keep coming.

Death Trial Set Oct. 14 In Auburn

AUBURN – A Superior Court jury trial has been scheduled to begin here on Oct. 14 for Jessie I. Vivier, 36, of San Francisco, charged with automobile manslaughter of a Sacramento man along with felony drunk driving.

Vivier appeared Thursday before Superior Judge Leland J. Propp.

Authorities claim Vivier was driving a car last June on California 28 at North Lake Tahoe when the car overturned, killing a passenger, Miles Pulver.

Seek Parking For Skiers

The Placer County Board of Supervisors has requested an ordinance establishing a formula for parking requirements at new skiing facilities to help solve traffic congestion problems at winter resort areas.

The formula to derive the number of parking spaces is to be obtained by taking the vertical rise in feet multiplied by the capacity per hour and divided by 4,000.

The board asked for the preparation of an ordinance after County Engineer Roger Imsdahl pointed out the existing zoning ordinance is inadequate since it requires only 10 parking spaces for each ski development. He indicated Boreal Ridge, which has 1,200 parking spaces, was used as a model in finding the formula.

Let Contract For Incline Highway Job

A Nevada State Highway Department contract to make Tahoe Blvd. in the Incline Village area part of Nevada 28 has been awarded to H. M. Byers Construction Co. of Reno.

The firm's bid was $379,959. The state recently accepted Tahoe Blvd. from Incline Village as part of the state highway system, to replace a parallel section of Nevada 28 along the lake shore. What is now the state highway will revert to Washoe County.

The project calls for reconstructing a .3-mile section at the easterly end of Tahoe Boulevard and a .9-mile section at the westerly end. Plans call for building a 32-foot wide roadbed which will allow for two 12-foot travel lanes and two four-foot shoulders.

New Enterprise For Ritchies

Peggy and Jim Ritchie, well known local restauranteers, who have operated the California Cafe in downtown Truckee, announced this week that they have taken over Smart's Cafeteria just west of town and will reopen the establishment Saturday, Sept. 14.

The cafeteria department will be closed and replaced with an 18-foot counter. The name of the restaurant will be changed to Ritchie's Restaurant and will feature Chinese as well as American dishes daily from 7:30 a.m. until 11:30 p.m. daily. Chinese chefs and cooks will be employed and Ritchie said moderate prices would prevail.

Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie have successfully operated the California Cafe for the past 11 years and will continue to manage that business as well as their new enterprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Smart, who have operated Smart's since it was constructed many years ago, will continue to manage their Wagon Train restaurant in downtown Truckee.

Set Reno Public Appearance For Actor Vincent Price

Actor, author and art connoisseur Vincent Price will appear in Reno in person on Saturday, Sept. 21. He will give a dramatic presentation entitled "An evening with Vincent Price" beginning at 8 p.m. at the Pioneer Theatre Auditorium.

The noted actor–artist is being brought to a western Nevada and eastern California audience by the Reno Branch of the National League of American Pen Women. The performance is a benefit for the Nevada Opera Guild.

Price's program will include excerpts from "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies" by James A. McNeill Whistler, and a brilliant protrayal from "The Last of My Solid Gold Watches" by Tennessee Williams. Also on the program will be selections from Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass." The performance runs the gamut of dramatic emotions from pathos to satire.

Known to youthful audiences throughout the world for his portrayal of wierd characters in horror motion pictures, Vincent Price's first love and educational training was in the field of art, a love he has indulged over the years. He is now noted for his own outstanding art collection as well as an art consultant and critic. His personal collection is made available to the public by arrangement with local museums. Price took pen in hand to become an author when he wrote the book on art entitled "I Like What I Know."

Price holds an honorary doctor's degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts, an honorary LLD from Ohio Wesleyan University. He is a member of the art council of the University of California at Los Angeles and is a member of the Los Angeles County Museum.

As an actor, Price had a long and distinguished career on Broadway before making his name in motion pictures as the alcoholic Southerner in Maxwell Anderson's "Eve of St. Mark." His later horror films include "House on Haunted Hill," "Circus," "The Return of the Fly," "The Tingler," and "Masque of the Red Death."

The actor appeared with Jose Ferrer in the New York City Center's production of "Richard III," and later toured with Estelle Winwood and Marsha Hunt in the "Cocktail Party."

Meet On Library

The next meeting of the local committee studying library services in Nevada County will be held September 17 at 8 p.m. in the courtroom of the government building in Gateway.

A spokesman for the group said that of California's 58 counties, only four are without county library service, and that those four are Yuba, Del Norte, Lake, and Nevada Counties.

Lake County was reported to have just completed a feasibility study and was about to approach the board of supervisors for approval. Upon approval, the county will undertake a two-year demonstration study of library services.

Army Engineers May Improve Truckee River Channel Through Downtown Reno

Army Engineers have recommended measuring the elevation of the Truckee River bottom through Reno as a means of protecting against channel encroachment.

Starr Hill Jr., surface water engineer for the state Division of Water Resources, said, "a profile (should) be taken of the channel bottom now so that the extent of the filling of the channel could be observed in the future."

In a letter to Carson–Truckee Water Conservation District, the agency responsible for flood control protection in conjunction with the proposed Martis Creek Dam upstream in California, Hill said, "Probably no elevations were taken of the channel bottom by the city of Reno after the channel work was completed several years ago."

He also was critical of fill being placed in the river channel in the vicinity of Scott and Elges Islands.

"Scott Island is being earth-filled," Hill wrote. "Although there are signs posted regarding the placement of fill, there is no supervision and as a result the river bank is being raised and is encroaching more and more upon the old channel."

Elges Island is situated above Idlewild Park and is the site for Elges Convalescent Hospital. Fill has been dumped and continues to be dumped on the river bank, raising the elevation of the bank and diminishing the channel cross–section. The elevation of the buildings is far below the top of the bank and should the bank breach, many patients could be trapped."

Hill said a request to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Sacramento office "might result in channel improvements by the Corps at this site which would increase the channel capacity and lessen the hazard."

Hill added construction of the Wells Avenue overpass has created a new "critical point. The new construction presents an ideal situation for debris to hang up. The river banks on both sides of the channel at the structure are lower and would be the first place the river would breach. This situation could be helped if both banks were widened and heightened at this location," Hill wrote.

Nutty Novelites Head Crystal Bay Show

THE NUTTY NOVELITES – A trio of lovable, laughable lunatics who are experts at making audiences laugh their troubles away. Currently the Novelites are bowling them over in the State Lounge of the Crystal Bay Club, on the north shore of Lake Tahoe.

The Crystal Bay Club on the North Shore of Lake Tahoe is echoing with laughter these nights as the nutty Novelites cut their crazy capers in the big Stage Lounge.

This group of zanies, composed of Frankie Carr, Joe Mayer and Chuck Leonard, are perennial favorites of Crystal Bay Club audiences, as they bring their wacky act back season after season, by popular demand. Simple logic illustrates the Novelites keep playing to bigger audiences all the time; those who have seen their riotous act invariably return to take it in again, and those who haven't seen it before are drawn by the gales of laughter coming from the direction of the Stage Lounge.

In addition to being talented comedians, the Novelites are also gifted musicians. Frankie does a masterful job on the accordian, Joe beats out a mean bass, and Chuck excels on vocals and mimicry. Once an audience is captured by comedy and melody of the Novelites, they're never the same again.

The Crystal Bay Club also features Charles Gould and his Satin Strings, who entertain in the Stage Lounge, as well as the Crystal Dining Room and the Crystal Steak House.

Entertainment by the Novelites and Charles Gould and his Satin Strings is featured nightly in the Stage Lounge of North Lake Tahoe's Crystal Bay Club.

Crash Helmet Credited With Saving Boy's Life

The fact that he was wearing a helmet probably saved the life and at least prevented serious injuries to Christopher D. Wiser, 16, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ray Wiser of Truckee, at 7 p.m. Saturday when the motorcycle he was riding and a pick-up truck operated by Roy E. McQuarry, Jr., 45, also of Truckee, collided in front of the Mini Mart in Gateway Shopping Center.

McQuarry was making a left turn into the market parking area and Wiser was traveling west on Emigrant Way. Apparently neither driver saw the other in time to avoid the collision and the buy was hurled to the pavement, striking his head on the roadway.

The Truckee Ambulance was summoned and the young victim removed to the Tahoe Forest Hospital where it was found he suffered concussion, bruises and shock but had escaped serious injury.

Truckee Elementary

Mrs. Miles—Third Grade

We have gotten off to a good start this first week, getting back into the routine of school after a relaxing summer. We have been pleased to welcome some new students who have moved into our area: Lynn Richardson, Suzie Saul, Billy Heise, Oran Seaholm, and Scott Marcellino.

We hope they like our school.

Mrs. Roberson – Eighth Grade

The following students were elected room officers for the first month of school: president, Norman Shively; vice president, Jim Davidson; secretary, Stephie Copeland; treasurer, Sheryl Burcell.

Two new students, Sheryl Burcell and Peter Francis, are enrolled in our homeroom.

Tahoe Lake School

Kindergarten, Mrs. Henke. Fifty five ambitious girls and boys enrolled in Kindergarten this week.

We did our first weekly reader surprise. All but three got stars on the zip puzzle.

First Grade, Miss Bean. We have 32 children in our class and they will be good workers this year. So far these are the jobs they want when they grow up: John Thelander will be a man who pulls trailers; Kim Arthur, a person who rides motorcycles; Sheri Bryan, a teacher; Daniel Klaussen, a jet pilot; Nina Nilsson, a mother; Heidi Rauscher, a ballerina; Cindy Smith, a ballet dancer; Larry Baker, a doctor; Jean Leonesio, a nurse and scientist; Paul Sheehan, an engineer; Dawn Bailey, a ballerina; David Evers, a carpenter; Trent Laferriere, a doctor; Karen Northrop, a girl that gives food in planes; Michael Rogers, a policeman; Kimberly Gates, a nurse; Ray O'Brian, a store man; Lisa Sproehnle, a doctor; Norman Huckle, a dentist; Priscilla Nored, a ballerina; Debra Cowan, a teacher; Bobby Bonino, a fireman; Kevin Fenley, a construction worker; Peter McCafferty, an artist who paints pictures; Julie Plumbridge, a ballerina; Cari Wilson, a nurse; Brenda Lambert, a nurse; Rob Rivard, a policeman; Mike Bechdolt, a fireman; and Cheryl Nash, a mother.

Second Grade, Mrs. Steinhauser. The year has started off to a very good start. Several children received 100 per cent in their first final spelling test for the year. Those who received 100 per cent were: Laurie Sullivan, Christine Sproehnle, John Estabrook, Jeff Collins, Marjorie Leonesio, David Shaw, Russell Poulsen, Eric Reuter, Joe Alves, Cynthia Harder, Carrie Smith, Mark Farchi, Patti Ransom and Andrea Thomsen.

The children who are the helpers for the week are: Christine Sproehnle and Matthew Wightman. Next week we will complete this list.

Third Grade, Mrs. Carnell. We're off and sailing into another new school year. The captain of our ship this first month is Shelly Bailey and her first mate is Sheila Thomsen. The other officers of the pirate crew are Timmy Smeltzer and Patty Nott, host and hostess. Ball monitors are Karen Dwyer and Mike Mariani.

This crew is so alert they all managed to receive 100 per cent in their spelling, expect just two mates who missed only one.

Parents will be interested to read their children's adventure stories. They had some rather narrow escapes from sharks, pirates, etc.

Next week the children will be bringing their hobbies to school and will explain them to the rest of the class.

Third Grade, Mrs. Long. We started the year (after much too short a summer) by electing officers. Our first president is Peter Onorato; vice-president, Shelly Stueven; team captains are Scott Jones and Michelle Gregor; hostess is Ann Marie Brolund; and host is Doug Doyle.

Donner Doings

By VI WHITE

Donner Lake was full of activity over the weekend, a sailing regatta, the annual road race up the old summit and an unexpected waterskier kite-flying exhibition.

Bob Benson of Modesto received the Truckee - Donner Chamber of Commerce trophy for winning the Lido 14 Invitational Regatta. Fred Hodder, Commodore of the Donner Lake Sailing Club, was second and received a trophy for the best DLSC sailor. Don Quackenbush of Sacramento was third, and Bill Rainey, DLSC member from Reno, fourth.

The road race was very successful this year with many more entrants than last. We could hear the cars as they zoomed up the curvy course. Bill Fitch, 29, son of Isabel and Walt of Donner Pines Motel won the first place trophy in the FV Class of Volkswagens. Bill is from San Jose and has been racing about a year in his new hobby.

A huge bright red kite was used by the water skiers to become airborne while being pulled by Paul Stroble's powerful boat. It was doubly interesting to watch after seeing the special TV program the night before from Cyprus Gardens, Florida, showing Johnny Carson doing the stunt. The scenes of barefoot skiing were unbelieveable, never realized that it's possible to turn around, let alone ski on one foot.

Have wanted to congrautlate Lona Boren for the first place award she recieved for her painting of Donner Lake and a second place ribbon for the lovely still-life of flowers entered in the Nevada County Fair this year. Quite a delight to find a familiar name on displays.

Pat Tonini reports that the Nevada County booth was awarded first place in its class at the California Expo this year. She was interviewed by a local radio station while working at the booth.

Brian Storm is indebted to Mrs. Bob English of Tahoe Vista for taking on the task of hand-feeding four tiny puppies since the tragic death of their mother, Buttons. Brian's mellow voice can be heard over KTRT every day.

The last patch of snow has melted on Tinkers Knob, 8949 feet, leaving the high peaks visable from here dry. Fall colorings are already appearing on the shrubs and some aspen show yellow leaves.

Virginia City Camel races attracted hundreds of people who visited the historic Nevada town over the weekend. Those ungainly animals are so unpredictable when a rider gets on. One man was tossed over the wire near us as the camel changed direction making spectators scatter fast.

Funniest of all events was the ostrich race. The huge birds were harnessed to a small cart in which the driver sat, then were let loose to run to the other end of the straight course. Not too sure of which direction to go, the drivers used brooms to flash past their eyes to keep them heading ahead. Fun to watch, the ostrichs wobbley legs.

Firettes president Karen Zirbel will conduct the first meeting of the auxiliary this season October 3 and reports that chairman Marilyn Marquette has scheduled an autumn dance at Donner Lake Lodge October 19, with a live band, so mark the date on your calendar and plan to attend this lively affair.

The community has been saddened by the death of two prominent men, Nat Quilici and "King" Cole, and we wish to add our condolences to their families.

Ed Gomes has enjoyed the use of his cabin on the south side of Donner Lake the past week and took several trips into the back country while here. His motorcycle is equiped with all kinds of things.

The Historical Society plans to replace markers along the Emigrant Trail this weekend.

The figure represents elementary, seconday, junior college and adult students.

Last year's total average daily attendance figure in the county was 22,818, or an anticipated increase of 6 per cent this year. During the past five years the schools of the county have shown an overall enrollment increase of 13.3 per cent.

Lake Tahoe Picnic For Murray & McCormick

Approximately 120 people from Sacramento, Marin County, San Leandro and Seattle, Washington are expected in Tahoe City Saturday, September 14, 1968 for a company picnic of Murray & McCormick, Consulting Civil Engineers. The all-day event is being co-sponsored by the Lake Tahoe and Sacramento offices of the firm and will involve 50 employes and their families. Earl Hagadorn, project manager for the Tahoe City office, states this will be the occasion of the first company get-together at Lake Tahoe. Including the firm's staff at the Lake, the total attendance is expected to reach 150.

Highlight of the day's activities will be boat tours of the Homewood High and Dry Marina, a unique dry storage shelter for boats up to 23 feet long. Providing year-round indoor storage for 180 boats, the Marina gives 5-minute launching service on a 12-hour daily schedule and is the only facility of its type on the West Coast and one of the few in the nation. Murray & McCormick performed the engineering for the 5-level storage facility and Marina development. The Murray & McCormick staff will be able to view the operation of the Marina fork lift which raises boats out of the water to heights of as high as 30 feet to stack craft in the various storage compartments.

Site of the picnic will be the Tahoe Marina Lodge, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Kearns (John and Barbara). Kearns is also providing two 19-foot boats for the Homewood tour as well as various kyacks and sailboats through his facility, the Tahoe Boat Company.

Murry & McCormick has offices at Lake Tahoe, Sacramento, Novato, San Leandro and Seattle, Washington. Formed in 1955, the firm soon branched out from its home base in San Leandro, opening offices in Sacramento at 1912 F Street in 1960 and at South Lake Tahoe in 1965. The present Tahoe City branch at Highlands Office Center was opened in 1967. The principal activities of Murray & McCormick are master planning and site development, subdivisions, public works programs, surveying and aerial topography.

Nancy Barker Weds Joe Alexander Dahl In Impressive Reno Ceremony

Miss Nancy Barker became the bride of Joe Alexander Dahl at an evening ceremony performed at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Golconda Drive, Reno. Officiating at the impressive rites was Bishop John Gonda.

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Barker of Kings Beach, Calif., and the granddaughter of Mrs. Ethel Gadda and the late William C. Gadda of Reno; and Mr. and Mrs. William Dedman of Sparks. She is also the great grandaughter of the late C.W. Brooks, Nevada pioneer and founder of the Model Dairy. It was on his birthdate the couple was married.

Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dahl, natives of Starr Valley, presently residing in Rapid City, South Dakota, where Mr. Dahl is president of the Northern Indian Mission for the LDS church. They are serving a three-year call and were unable to attend. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Egbert of Riverton, Utah.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was beautiful in a gown fashioned from peau de soie and corded alencon lace and styled in a romantic cage with long sleeves. An Elizabethan lace collar framed the face and a lace panel in front and back fell to the hemline. A full detatchable train fell from the shoulders in a graceful cathedral length. Her veil of illusion was held by a peau de soie bow, edged in matching lace. The bride chose to wear white, old-fashioned high lace boots. Nancy carried a lace-covered bible, a cherished keepsake which had been a gift to her great uncle Alexander Barker in 1891. The streamers adorning it were of baby pink roses and bouvardia.

Maid of honor was good friend Susan Tribuzio, and bridesmaids were sisters Catherine and Michelle, and cousin Catherine Sheehan. They were gowned alike and lovely in dresses in two shades of candy pink. Their matching headpieces were peau de soie bows with illusion veil. They carried dutch colonial bouquets of pink sensation roses and pink verigated elegance carnations. Third cousin Betsy Gadda was flower girl. Her basket was filed with baby pink roses.

Completing the wedding party were DeMar Dahl, eldest brother of the groom, who served as best man. Ushers were Drew Dahl, another brother, just returned from serving on a mission in England, cousin Courtney Dahl from Starr Valley, and good friend Jan Agee of Reno.

Mrs. Helen Garrett organist, and Mr. Joseph Battaglia soloist, both of Reno, provided beautiful music for the lovely ceremony. Cousins Colleen Lyons and Theresa Lerude, dressed alike in pink striped dresses, passed out matching rice bags.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Twentieth Century Club. Attending the guest book was cousin Susan Sheehan and cutting the cake were sisters Jennifer and Olivia Dahl.

The Lady Windermere cake was beautiful and designed by a friend, Mrs. Everest Zediker.

After the wedding trip, which the newlyweds kept secret, they will reside in Reno.

The bride is a graduate of Tahoe-Truckee High school and attended Sierra College.

The groom graduated from Wells High School, completed one year at the University of Nevada, and served two years at the Alaskan-Canadian Mission for the LDS church. He is a cadet in officers candidate school in the army national guard.

Both families enjoyed reunions with their many relatives and friends, in the area and from out of town, who attended the festivities.

BRIDE AND GROOM – The new Mr. and Mrs. Joe Alexander Dahl cut their wedding cake following Reno ceremony; bride is former Nancy Barker, of Kings Beach, a graduate of Tahoe-Truckee High School.

PUC Okays Donner Pass Power Deal

The Public Utilities Commission last week authorized Sierra Pacific Power Company to sell its public utility electric facilities in the Donner Summit area, Nevada County, to Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

The purchase price for Sierra's system in the area is stated to be $164,561.39, plus the actual cost of additions and betterments made to the system between June 30, 1967 and the date of transfer.

During 1967, Sierra supplied electric service to an average of 137 customers and received total gross revenue of $62,063 related to its Donner Summit area electric facilities. PG&E estimates that the rates it proposes to institute would have produced a reduction of approximately $3,800.

The PUC order finds that PG&E rates, charges and rules should be made effective in the area. It further states that PG&E should continue billing on Sierra's tariffs to those customers who would receive an increase if PG&E rates were applied until the customer transfer to PG&E rates or until service is permanently discontinued at the location being served on the date of transfer.

PG&E and Sierra are each certificated by PUC to serve portions of the Donner Summit area in Nevada County. During the past three decades, customer growth has occasionally occurred in such a way that service could be rendered more efficiently by Sierra, even though the new load was in PG&E's certificated area. Both utility companies agreed that Sierra could serve such load until such time as PG&E desired to assert its right to provide the service.

Previously, in 1967, Sierra transferred to the Truckee Public Utility District a portion of its service area in Nevada County east of Donner Summit. Because the portion remaining to Sierra after the Truckee transfer and the distance of the Donner Summit area from the balance of Sierra's service area, agreement was reached with PG&E for the sale of Sierra's facilities necessary to supply customers in this area.

The PUC order also reestablished the boundary line between the sercie areas of Sierra and PG&E in Nevada County in the Donner Summit area. The order becomes effective Sept. 24.

Clampers Meet

A special business meeting of Chief Truckee Chapter of E Clampus Vitus has been set for 7:30 p.m. this Friday, September 13, according to an announcement by Al Lewis, Noble Grand Humbug of the local group.

All good brothers of the order are urged to attend. Site of the meeting is Red & Tillie's friendly watering spa in downtown Truckee.

Tahoe's Letts —Riding High

VIRGINIA CITY – South Lake Tahoe's Paul Letts didn't have to walk a mile for a camel—but a camel named Lena and Letts were a winning combination Sunday.

Letts rode Lena to a win in the National Camel and Ostrich Races.

In the ostrich racing, Sen. James Slattery of Reno won easily.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 watches the races, according to officials.

Letts rode his camel to a three–length win ahead of Virginia City's "Doc" Holliday. Newspaper photographer Marilyn Newton took third over a mysterious "white knight" rider.

Sen Slattery, chariman of the races for the past nine years, since they began, edged Kevin Sheehan of Virginia City in the ostrich race.

ART SHOW – Historic Ehrman estate at Sugar Pine Point State Park on the West Shore is the site of an art show continuing this week, featuring local artists and artisans, and sponsored by the North Tahoe advisory committee on state parks. Art, Artifacts Show Continues This Week At Historic Ehrman Mansion Near Tahoma

Many familiar scenes are shown in paintings displayed by local artists at the art show in the old Ehrman mansion at the California State Park, Sugar Pine Point, Tahoma. The display is being sponsored by the Advisory Committee of the Tahoe state parks to show the potential of the building for use as an interpretative center on a permanent basis.

The show will be open to the public free all week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. until the 15th. The California State Parks and Recreation Commissioners will be meeting in session in the home Friday, the 13th, to hear proposals for other uses of the Ehrman home.

One hundred seventy–five camp sites are being completed on the east side of the park property and will be open next year for public use. The park commissioners will be taking a boat cruise to Emerald Bay and a tour of the Vikingsholm Thursday, along with other inspections of the state parks on the west shore. They will be meeting local chamber leaders and advisory committee members for a dinner at the California Alumni Center in Tahoe City Thursday night. Reservations may be made by calling the chamber office, 583–3461.

Those commissioners expected to be at Tahoe for the two–day meetings are: Harry Sokolov, chairman; Judge McIntyre Faires; Clarice Gilchrist; Leah F. McConnell; Marg W. Owings; Dr. Horace Parker; Leonard S. Thomson; Daniel D. Dillanueda; Harold L. Zellerbach; and director William Penn Mott, Jr.

The artists entered in the art show are: Patrick J. Alkire and Shirley A. Irving of South Lake Tahoe; Cora and Wm. Frost of Homewood; Jane Fiedler and Margaret Irving of Olympic Valley; Margaret Carpenter, Norma Schaumann, Lillian Farr, Les Edinburg, Jean Joynt, Virginia Kiser, Pamela Lou Gillette and Betty Layton of Tahoe City; Robert Yelland, Olive F. Champie of Carnelian Bay; and Mrs. Frances Hayman, Ann Tiller and Tudie Mallay of Incline Village.

Chairman Lillian Farr expressed thanks to the Tahoe City Women's Club and the Tahoe Squaws for their volunteers who will be hostesses at the show for the week.

There is a children's corner of paintings upstairs, some early photographs of Lake Tahoe, award winning hand painted china, hand crafted pottery, sculpture, an interesting display of baskets made of pine needles in a technique which Mrs. Bill Vernon perfected in her early pioneer days at Tahoe, as well as many outstanding oils and water colors.

Chairman Farr said that although the space was limited for this particular show, the committee will be accepting artifacts of the early Tahoe days which will be used in a permanent display. The opening day's large attendance proved, she said, the tremendous interest in the Ehrman home and the use of its facilities.

North Tahoe Chamber Pot-Shots:

Placer County Day at the state fair, Cal Expo, Wednesday, the 4th, was observed with a large contingent from North Lake Tahoe. "Miss Sierra Snowflake", Sheila Rosamond, participated along with Miss Auburn and Miss Rocklin.

Joan Walling and Nancy Williams, accompanied by some of their champion Siberian Huskies, promoted the dog sled races at Tahoe, January 25 & 26, 1969. Diana Church and John Corbett of Squaw Valley were a crowd pleaser with their demonstration shortee–ski machine. President Dave Stollery introduced queen Shiela and the dog sled racers in evening ceremonies honoring Placer County.

Notice was sent out to chamber members this week of three important meetings. Thursday, the 12th, they are invited to meet state park commissioners at a dinner at the California Alumni Center. On the 13th, President Stollery will be presenting to the commission the advisory committe's proposal for the use of the Ehrman mansion which is solely for an interpretive center and they do not recommend that it be used as a youth hostel. Also on the 13th, there will be a local leadership conference in Sacramento sponsored by the U.S., State and Sacramento Chambers. Several local businessmen will b attending.

Now that the busy season is over, chamber directors are inviting members to a leisurely lunch on the lake at the Lake Tahoe Hotel, Incline Village, the 18th. The By–Laws Committee, Gordon Redall, Lefty Lenne and Dave Stollery, has held several meetings and made several recommendations for changes which will be voted on at the 18th meeting. Reservations may be made for any of these meetings by calling the Chamber office, 583–3461.

At a special meeting of the board of directors, it was decided that this year they would accept the invitation of Wayne Paulsen to hold the popular Dog Sled Races in Squaw Valley Jan. 25 & 26. The directors concluded that the races would be visible for the entire length of the meadows and there would be more spectators in the are to view them.

They voted to keep the fast moving snowmobile races in Kings Beach on a one–day basis, the 18th, and Gerry Eden has again generously donated the use of the Brockway Golf Course for this event.

Plans are underway to promote Winter Carnival Week, commencing with the "Miss Sierra Snowflake" snowball at the Nevada Lodge the 17th of January and have an entire week of festivities.

The Saloon Slalom will be the featured attraction the 21st, as well as other fun and family races. The dog sled committee, Bob Daneri, Bill Summerlin, Ben Ferrari and Don Heninger, agreed to commence soliciting funds for sponsoring the dog sled faces to make this the most successful event in its eight–year history.

The Reno Chamber of Commerce has a promotional office in Chicago and they are on a full–time basis promoting North Lake Tahoe along with the Reno area. They have 777 prime travel agencies in the Chicago area that are requesting return information about North Lake Tahoe. The Reno chamber does not promote the south shore.

Todd Reappointed County Counsel

For the second time, Leo Todd has been appointed county counsel for the next four years.

The second action was taken by the Nevada County Board of Supervisors Tuesday as Todd's last four–year term expired last Saturday.

The board approved a new term for Todd in April, then learned the action was premature, that his old one wasn't expiring then.

The action was repeated Tuesday, as Chairman Bret Bennallack said, "to make the timing right."

The reappointment was unanimous.

Tahoe Sewer Districts Review Export Needs

Tahoe City Public Utility District was expected to make an urgent plea for a $2 million state loan at a meeting today of all the Lake Tahoe Basin sewer districts to review the status and needs of all Tahoe sewage export projects.

The meeting, called by California Sen. Stephen D. Teale, D–West Point, was held at the offices of the South Tahoe Public Utility District here.

The $2 million request was to be made by William B. Layton, TCPUD manager, who was to present detailed reports showing what export projects have been funded in his district and what ones have not been funded.

"We have no funds available for the extension of the export line from Timberland, about one mile south of Sunnyside to Bliss State Park," Layton has said.

The export line chiefly in El Dorado County, will be 12 miles long.

"The cost of this export line will total $4 million," Layton said.

"Our TCPUD is holding a $2 million bond election Oct. 1 in an effort to fund half the cost of this export line.

We will require the $2 million of state funds to complete the project. We will be bonded to the limit if our voters pass the Oct. 1 bond issue," he said.

Layton added that if the bond issue passes and the export works and treatment plant at Tahoe City are completed by 1970 as required by law, his district's total indebtedness for treatment plant export lines and sewering will be $18 million.

Today's meeting was to include progress reports from Thomas Llewellyn manager North Tahoe PUD and a status report from Alfred Hodder, manager Truckee Sanitary District.

J. Allen Bray, chairman of California Tahoe Regional Planning Agency was to set forth the export policy for the State of California and Ernest Gregory, Nevada health chief was to present the export policy fo his state.

Both states are aiming for total export by 1970.

Board Names Bank Director

The election of C. E. (Bud) Helgren to the Board of Directors of First National Bank of Nevada was announced by Board Chairman and President Arthur M. Smith.

Area Council Schedules Meeting

Lake Tahoe Area Council's fall membership meeting will be held Sept. 20.

A bus will leave Crystal Bay Club on the North Shore at 3:30 p.m. to carry spectators to the council's demonstration laboratory at Tahoe City.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. at the Crystal Bay Club at a charge of $5 per person. The dinner speaker will be Payton Jordan, head coach of the men's track and field team now training at South Lake Tahoe's high–altitude site for the Olympic games.

Advance reservations are necessary and can be made by writing P. O. Box 3475 at South Lake Tahoe.

Sierra Pacific Readies $98.9 Million Program

SAN FRANCISCO — During the next five years Sierra Pacific Power Co. will spend $98.9 million on new construction, President Neil W. Plath told the Security Analysts of San Francisco Thursday.

Plath said a third of the amount will go for distribution facilities to an estimated 25,000 new customers. He said the Reno–based utility would spend almost as much on electric plant alone between 1968 and 1972 as it did on all construction, electric, gas and water in the preceding five years.

Sierra Pacific serves approximately 213,000 persons today, the president said, and will be serving about 283,000 persons in 1972. Plath predicted the population of Sierra Pacific's electric service territory might reach half a million by 1990 as Nevada and the Sierra country of California continue their astonishing growth patterns.

Carson City, he said, has lost its title as the nation's smallest capital city, with a city–county population today more than three times the 1950 population.

Plath predicted major population gains in and around Lake Tahoe Basin as more and more people find ways to combine recreation living with employment.

Plath said Sierra Pacific revenues increased 7.4 per cent in 1967 and 5.1 per cent in the first seven months of 1968 compared to 1967.

Exams Out In Some Welfare Jobs

SACRAMENTO— The 43 California counties in the Merit System of the State Department of Social Welfare have been advised that written examinations are no longer necessary for "welfare service aide" positions in county welfare offices.

State Welfare Director John C. Montgomery announced that new federal guidelines for employment of the poor and disadvantaged permit the written examination to be waived.

Scheduling of unwritten examinations by the Merit System, however, will only be done at the request of county boards of Supervisors, Montgomery pointed out. This will include establishment of the welfare service aide class and salary range by the individual county desiring the waiver.

Welfare service aides can be used by county welfare departments to assist social workers in making inquiries, calls and visits, and to facilitate communication and interpretation with welfare applicants and clients particularly those in minority groups.

Aides work under the direction of professionally trained staff and do not exercise independent judgment in such matters as eligibility determination.

A two-year "Welfare Aide Project" nearing completion in the Alameda County Welfare Department, in cooperation with the University of California and sponsored by the State Department of Social Welfare, involved several aides drawn from the caseload of Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and working as full-time employes helping social workers improve client services.

The typical aide, as described by Mrs. Dorothea Cudaback, project dcirector: "Aides are like the clients they serve.

They are typically between 28 and 40 years old, have at least two children, have received AFDC for at least two years, have nonexistent or very spotty work histories, and have completed the 11th or 12th grade in school."

Mrs. Cudaback has also observed that "aides are twice advantaged in communicating with clients: having shared many of the clients' experiences, their sensitivity to the clients' needs are frequently heightened and their free admission that they too have been through it establishes a bond that markedly eases rapport."

Need Help On Your Social Security? . . .

This is another of a series of questions and answers on Social Security. They are typical of questions answered every day by Social Security Representatives throughout the country.

If you have a question about social security, send it to Arthur A. Johnson, Jr., District Manager, Social Security Administration, Reno, Nev. 89502. Your answer will appear in a future column.

Question: A maid works for me at the rate of $10 a day one day each week. Am I required to report these earnings to social security?

Answer: Yes. If a domestic worker is paid cash wages of $50 or more in a calendar quarter by any one employer, the employer must report these wages to social security. This employer is paying her domestic employee $130 each quarter and therefore she has a tax liability to the social security administration.

Question: I'm not ready to retire yet but my wife is 65 and has worked under social security for several years. Does she have to wait until I file for my social security before she can start her payments?

Answer: No. She can file for payments without waiting until her husband files. When he files his application, the social security office will check to see whether his wife can then become entitled to any more money on his record. If she can, we will get an application from her for those payments.

Knowing How To Recognize And Treat Shock Can Save A Life

Shock is treacherous.

The condition known medically as shock results from a lack of blood circulating in the body. It may be produced by external or internal bleeding, by loss of body fluids in severe burns.

Hard blows, crushed bones or muscles, bone fractures, bullet wounds may cause shock.

Shock is so dangerous that it can result in death if not treated promptly and properly, yet its symptoms can go unnoticed by an untrained or unobservant person. An accident victim may appear only slightly injured, yet be suffering from shock. Be on the safe side. Take shock for granted in all cases of serious injury.

Any or all of these symptoms can mean shock:

Rapid, weak pulse; cool, pale, clammy skin; great thirst; restlessness and anxiety, developing into mental cloudiness, listlessness, and unconsciousness. Shallow, irregular breathing; vacant, dull eyes; nausea and vomiting.

In an accident or other disaster, your first acts of medical help should be to control severe bleeding and restore breathing. Next, treat for shock, remembering that the best treatment is prevention.

Position is of first importance. Keep person lying down so blood will remain in the head and chest where it is needed. This position puts least demand on the heart. If there is breathing difficulty, raise head and chest (unless there is neck or back injury). If there was a great loss of blood, elevate feet and legs about 12 inches.

Protect patient from chill or dampness, but do not let him become overheated.

It is necessary to replace lost fluids, but don't try to force liquid by mouth on an unconscious person.

Do not give alcoholic beverages.

If the person is conscious, give plain water. Start slowly, but let him have all he can take. A solution of 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon of baking soda to 1 quart of water is also recommended.

Anything to lessen pain will help in reducing shock damage.

Remember that reassurance acts like medicine. Handle your patient calmly and confidently. Above all, don't show panic yourself.

In an emergency, you are not likely to have plasma at hand (but you can replace fluids as outlined above) — nor will you have a powerful pain-killer such as morphine (but you might give aspirin if it is available).

There will be medical decisions you can't possibly make correctly. Don't waste time worrying about your limitations. Do the best you can with your general knowledge of Medical Self-Help. These simple treatments for shock could mean the difference between life and death.

Burns — Know What To Do When It Happens To You

We are often burning ourselves or being burned by things encountered in everyday life. There are countless opportunities for a burn in school, home, work, or recreation.

Some of these burns may be minor, but others are serious matters. Too, burns often complicate other injuries.

Fire is a frequent part of automobile, boat, or plane accidents; it goes along with natural disasters of earthquake and flood. It would be a major peril in nuclear attack.

Before attention is given to a burn, treat breathing failure and severe bleeding and then proceed as follows:

Treat for shock, a condition present in all serious burns, by relieving pain and encouraging fluids.

Prevent infection (cover burned area with sterile or clean dry cloth).

Don't:

Use medication, grease, oil, butter, try to clean, burn, open blisters.

Apply dressings that aren't clean, it's better to leave burn exposed.

Change dressings unless absolutely necessary (burns smell bad after a few days; this does not necessarily mean infection).

However, newest evidence seems to show that cold water may be the best emergency treatment for minor burns.

It relieves pain dramatically.

After the first general procedures of medical aid have been done, treatment is tailored to the type and gravity of the burn. There are three kinds of burns and three degrees of seriousness.

1 – Thermal burns, caused by excessive heat (burning clothing, hot stove, spilled coffee, sunburn).

2 – Electrical burns. These are extremely dangerous. The burn itself is likely to be severe, and there may be damage to brain, heart, or respiratory system from the electrical current.

("Electric shock," which is the body's reaction to an electrical current passing through it, is not the same as "shock," the body's reaction to any severe injury.)

Electrical burns may not appear to be serious at first, but take it for granted they are.

3 – Chemical burns. In chemical burns, immediate washing of the burned area with large amounts of water (lukewarm, if possible) to remove or dilute the chemical, is even more urgent than treatment for shock.

If eyes are affected flush with a continuous flow of water.

Degrees are classified according to the depth of the burn.

1 – first degree, with redness and possible swelling, requires little or no treatment.

2 – second degree, recognizable by blistering.

3 – third degree, the most serious, with destruction of all layers of skin.

Underlying tissues may be exposed and the burn may penetrate to the muscle and bone. The skin is usually charred.

There is danger of infection in second and third degree burns.

Covering them with sterile or clean cloth cuts down on possibility of contamination and relieves pain by keeping air from burns.

The seriousness of burns is determined by how much of the body surface is burned, as well as by the depth of the burn.

Shallow burns covering a large area may be a greater threat to life than deeper, smaller ones.

Faced with a severe burn case, remember the first acts of medical help are to treat for shock (relieve pain, give fluids) and keep burn from contamination.

Need Key Facts About Draft? . . .

To provide the public with continuing information on the draft, Colonel Addison A. Millard, State Director of Selective Service for Nevada, has provided the following most often asked questions and answers.

Q.: If I receive my baccalaureate degree this June and enter graduate school for a course of study which would not permit me to be deferred as a student, can I be deferred if I join the ROTC?

A.: Yes, if certified as a member of the Advanced or Senior ROTC which leads to a reserve commission, you would be eligible for a I-D classification.

Q.: My Local board has refused to classify me into a deferred class. Can I request a deferment from the State Director of Selective Service?

A.: You may request it, but he has no authority to grant a deferment. The State Director may exercise his right of appeal in unusual cases, request reconsideration of a classification, or postpone an induction, but he cannot defer you. Only the local board and appeal boards have the authority to classify.

Q.: I just turned 18 and am registered with Selective Service. Can I volunteer for induction or must I wait until I am called by my local board?

A.: Any 18-year old registrant may volunteer for induction into the Armed Forces by completing and filing with his local board an Application for Voluntary Induction (SSS Form 254).

Q.: I am now 27 years old and earlier had my liability extended to age 35. Is there any chance of my being inducted into the Armed Forces?

A.: If more personnel are needed, you might be called for induction. At the present time, with the exception of physicians and those who have been declared delinquent, only those registrants who have not attained their 26th birthday are being ordered to report for induction.

Q.: I finished two years of college and was deferred in II-A while with the Peace Corps. I have just returned from two years with the Corps and wish to re-enter college. Am I still eligible for a II-S classification?

A.: Yes. A registrant who re-enters school as an undergraduate and who has been classified in either Class II-A or IV-D since his last full-time attendance shall not be considered to have failed to meet the requirements pertaining to "satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction" as specified in Selective Service Regulations. It should be noted, however, that you will continue to be eligible for a II-S student deferment only until you complete the requirement for your baccalaureate degree, fail to satisfactorily pursue a full-time course of instruction, or reach your 24th birthday, whichever occurs first.

Q.: When must my appeal be forwarded by my local board to the State Appeal Board?

A.: Your file must be forwarded by your local board to the State Appeal Board no later than five days following expiration of the period in which you may request an appeal.

Fall-Winter Flow Of Truckee River Most Dangerous

By Prof. Wendell A. Mordy
Director, Desert Research Institue
University of Nevada

The Truckee River rises in California on the east flank of the Sierra Nevada and flows for more than one hundred miles to the north and east to its natural terminus, Pyramid Lake.

During the water year (Oct. 1 through Sept. 30) average flow for the 67 years that records have been kept is 564,000 acre-feet at the gaging station at Farad, California, several miles upstream from the Nevada-California line (One acre-foot is 326,000 gallons, the amount of water required to cover an acre to a depth of one foot).

Average yearly gaged contributions to this flow are: Lake Tahoe (171,600 acre-feet), Donner Lake (22,300 acre-feet), Little Truckee River through Boca Dam (132,500 acre-feet). Prosser Creek through Prosser Creek Dam (58,300 acre-feet) and Martis Creek (13,000 acre-feet).

The remainder of the average total flow, about 166,250 acre-feet, is contributed by minor tributaries and direct discharge of springs and ground water along the river. Additional inflows below Farad are minor.

Average flow at Reno (Kietzke Lane) is 467,700 acre-feet, the decrease from Farad flow attributable to diversions for irrigation and human use through Truckee Meadows.

Flow shows an increase at the Vista gaging station (558,900 acre-feet) because of return of diverted water and some new inflows, for example, Steamboat Creek.

Flow again is improverished below Derby Dam where water is diverted to the southeast through the Truckee Canal to Lahontan Reservoir on the mainstem of the Carson River. Average flow at Nixon, Nevada above Pyramid Lake is 176,600 acre-feet.

The natural flow regimen of the Truckee may be divided into three periods. The snow-melt period commonly begins in March and extends through May into June.

During this period flow is uniformly high, short-term variation governed by air temperature and spring storms in the Sierra Nevada.

The period June-October can be thought of as the summer storm period, flow gradually decreasing from the spring highs but frequently temporarily increased by rapid runoff from mountain rainstorms.

Yearly low flows commonly occur during September. For example, the extreme recorded low flow is when the Truckee at Reno ceased entirely to flow during the latter half of September, 1926.

The late fall-winter period is characterized by relatively low flows, punctuated by occasional one to two week periods of extremely high flows caused by wet snowstorms and brief periods of mid-winter melting of mountain snow pack.

This is the period of maximum flood danger; the great of late December, 1955 registering at Reno a maximum flow of 20,800 acre-feet per second (156,000 gallons per second).

Basic flow is somewhat higher during the winter than during the summer storm period, at least in part due to decrease of upstream demands on water by evaporation and plant use.

Commencing nearly one hundred years ago man has progressively altered the natural flow regimen of the Truckee by regulation of inflows and outflows from dams.

Storage structures have been constructed at Lake Tahoe, Prosser Creek and Boca Dams, and Donner Lake.

Storage in Lake Tahoe by the dam at Tahoe City is confined to the elevation interval 6,223 feet (natural rim of lake) to 6,229.1 feet.

This represents storage potential of 744,600 acre-feet, more than the average yearly flow of the Truckee, which in practice is rarely used to its fullest extent.

At the maximum level damage to shoreline structures frequently occurs; at minimum levels use of shoreline structures and esthetic values suffer.

New dams under construction or authorized are Stampede, on the Little Truckee above Boca Reservoir, and Martis Creek.

Numerous Buses

At the start of 1968, 1,002,554 buses were registered in the United States, reports the National Automobile Club.

Senator Teale Replies To Charge On Property Taxes

SACRAMENTO — Senator Stephen P. Teale (D-West Point) in answer to a charge that he was not interested in property tax relief, said the people could not afford the type of property tax relief proposed in AB 149.

Teale, in a letter to William J. Woods, Chairman of the Sierra County Board of Supervisors, said an analysis of AB 149 prepared from figures supplied by the State Board of Equalization indicated that "97 per cent of home owners in Sierra County would receive less than $7 per year in tax relief and would pay more than twice that amount in sales tax to provide the necessary funds for that relief.

"This is truly a poor bargain in comparison to lapsing of the half cent sales tax," Teale said and indicated that the real effect of this bill "would simply be to shift the burden from utilities and big business to the poor people."

He said he would not be a party to such a move.

The Sierra County Supervisor had indicated in his letter that it was essential for passage of AB 149 because the taxpayer was in a state of revolt over paying for local government from the property tax.

"I agree with you that the taxpayer is in a state of revolt over paying for county and city functions from property taxes," Teale said, "But I assure you that they are not willing to give up any of the services which you are providing either on your own, or in partnership with the state and federal government."

Teale said that due to the preoccupation of the administration with their effort to shift the local tax burden from the rich to the poor, a number of other bills which would have been of much greater value to the lower income property taxpayer have been passed over.

Hazardous Work Carried On At Travis Air Force Base

TRAVIS AFB, – Inside a roped–off area on the Travis Air Force Base flight line, five oddly–dressed men are seen working cautiously under–neath the wing of a C–141 Star–lifter.

"Fuel Systems Repair–Keep Out," warns the signs around the area. But the sign does not apply to the five men in–side the area for they are a team of fuel systems techni–cians from the Aircraft Fuel Systems Shop of the 60th Field Maintenance Squadron.

Wearing special protective clothing and equipment, the technicians begin their danger–ous job.

They climb the mobile ladder under the wing of the aircraft to a platform at the top.

Each man then touches a metal plate attached to the rails of the platform which removes the static electricity from their bodies.

A final check is made to en–sure that they have no metal objects – such as rings, but–tons and watches – on their person.

Then, two of the repairmen climb onto the aircraft's wing and open the fuel tank, loosing the poisonous fumes inside which are so flammable that only a small spark would cause a big explosion.

Meanwhile, the team leader checks the reading on the ex–plosimeter which measures the amount of fumes in the area, while a blower disperses and dissipates them.

When the explosimeter in–dicates that the deadly fumes are at a safe level, the team starts to work. One of the men disappears inside the tank and the others begin checking the tank's external components. They are provided fresh air through their protective masks by an air compressor located inside the area.

Throughout their work, the team takes all necessary safety precautions because the fumes are heavier than air and settle on the floor. The least amount of static electricity or a small spark could prove disastrous.

All lights and special tools used by the team are explosion proof. The white coveralls which the men wear are made of non–static producing cotton and special protective shoes are worn. When a team member en–ters the fuel tank he wears a paper hat.

When the job is finished, the team gives the aircraft the "go" sign.

Whenever trouble – such as a leak – develops in an air–craft's fuel system, it is brought to a repair area on the flight line. A team of fuel systems technicians is dispatched to the area and necessary repairs made. Sometimes a "quick–fix" team, composed of senior fuel systems technicians, is sent to expedite repairs.

The fuel systems shop, which has 48 military and 29 civilian personnel, has four teams of technicians. The shop is re–sponsible for repairing fuel tanks and associated equipment on assigned C–141, C–133 and transient aircraft when neces–sary.

To accomplish its mission, the shop operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"We have an outstanding safety record because, for us, safety is a matter of life and death," explains Master Ser–geant John W. Rose, fuel shop noncommissioned officer in charge. Arthur J. Bowland is shop supervisor.

"Fuel systems technicians such as those in our shop," says Sergeant Rose, "are per–forming perhaps the most hazardous aircraft repair of any aircraft mechanics in the Air Force today."

Photos On Display

RENO – A collection of photo–graphs dealing with American Flats, a crumbling concrete mining mill built on the edge of the Comstock in 1922, is on display in the Church Fine Arts building on the University of Nevada campus.

The series of black and white photographs are by Jamie Arjona, university photogra–pher, and his wife, Elaine.

The photo display is the first of an Art department sponsored series of graphic and sculp–tural exhibits centered around the old mill structures which have been abandoned for 30 years.

American Flats is west of Silver City and the bill there was one of the first re–enforced concrete structures to be built in the west.

The series of art works deal–ing with the site is under direc–tion of Walter McNamara, art and exhibit preparator for the department. Future exhibits will include additional photos and films as well as painting and sculptures using the locale as a theme.

Arjona, a former press photographer, said American Flats "presents one of the most interesting and exciting compositional challenges of any structure I have found."

A graduate of the University of Connecticut, Arjona has worked for daily newspapers and a news service and has been a contributor to national news magazines.

Computers May Run The World

Certain people believe that computers will one day run the world.

Computers have already en–tered into the traffic picture, according to the National Auto–mobile Club, especially on the Gulf Freeway in Houston, Texas.

There, ramp metering aids the motorist, with access to the freeway being controlled by the computer.

Sensing devices lie along the freeway for the purpose of de–tecting gaps in traffic and re–laying this information to the computer.

With the detection of such a gap, the computer, in turn, switches the on–ramp traffic light to green.

Despite its advantages, its aiding the flow of freeway traf–fic, ramp metering sometimes burdens already crowded arter–ial streets with an extra load, forces them to carry excess traffic that the freeway can't accommodate during peak tra–vel hours.

McMurray Gets Housing Post

David R. McMurray, as–sistant dean of men and director of housing at the University of Nevada, has been appointed a member of the Personnel Training committee of the Cali–fornia Association of College and University Housing Of–ficers.

McMurray received his higher education in Oregon and Washington and joined the Ne–vada faculty a year ago.

Two Nevada Districts Construct New Sewage Treatment Facility

For years pollution of Lake Tahoe has been a major concern of residents around the lake.

One problem concerned individuals faced was disposal of water wastes.

An outgrowth of this concern was a federal edict that all waste matter must be exported from the Lake Tahoe Basin by 1970.

To meet the federal requirement and to maintain the purity of Lake Tahoe, two Douglas County improvement districts joined together to build a sewage treatment plant.

The districts are Douglas County Sewer Improvement District No. 1, which handles the general area, including casinos and residences at Stateline; and the Round Hill General Improvement District.

Construction began on the joint project during the spring of 1967 and is now virtually complete.

For the past few years sewage from the districts was piped to California and treated by South Tahoe Public Utility District, but due to rising costs the contract, which runs out in November will not be renewed, according to Julio Alves, superintendent of the new treatment plant.

Built at a cost of $2,200,000 the new facility, officially named Waste Water Reclamation Plant Joint Project, took over treatment of district sewage about a month ago.

"The facility is here to help Mother Nature do a faster and more efficient job on sewage by creating better environment for the propagation of organisms which feed on organic waste materials in sewage," according to Alves.

"Mother Nature could do the job herself if we had enough space, proper temperatures and time. But that would be an impossible task, when you figure that the average resident uses about 110 gallons of water daily," he said. "We would need more than 100 acres of land for use as ponds to let nature do the job. The asthetics of it would be a problem," Alves said.

Sewage treatment at the plant consists of four major steps.

When sewage arrives by pipeline to the plant it is first clorinated for odor control; then the large particles are shredded.

The waste water is then moved to a primary settling tank where floatable materials are skimmed off the top and heavy materials settle on the bottom of the tank.

At an aeration tank the waste water has oxygen and biological matter added. The biological material feeds on the organic and suspended wastes in the water, Alves said.

The waste is then moved to a secondary tank where the biological material is recovered for use in the aeration tanks again.

A reservoir, located about a half a mile from the plant, receives the water next. From the reservoir, where the water is stored, it is ready for export from the Tahoe Basin.

The water is pumped over the mountains, where it joins a creek and eventually winds up in the Carson River.

Accompaning pictures on this page show some of the new facility.

PRIMARY SETTLING TANK — Shown is the primary settling tank at the new joint sewage treatment plant. The facility is operated through the combined efforts of the Douglas County Sewer Improvement District No. 1 and the Round Hill General Improvement District.

Newsman To Report Conflict

By ROSS P. GAME
Editor, Scripps League of Newspapers

Why does anyone want to return to Vietnam?

For those who do go back to the country rocked by war and death and suffering there are many reasons for the move.

Some go from necessity. Some are motivated to help buddies who may have been left behind. Some feel an inner drive to continue the struggle against an aggressor force. For a newsman who returns to Vietnam it is a matter of facing a challenge.

Since being in that Southeast Asian country many months ago, a newsman feels that the real story behind the struggle in Vietnam has yet to be told—so that Mr. and Mrs. Average citizen will understand it.

Why must the youngsters from the main streets of America die in battle in such a far away land? Why must the military hospitals be so crowded with those who were felled by enemy weapons and may have lost a limb—or limbs? Then, too, there are those who are recuperating from bullet wounds and the other scars of battle. Why, of why must these young kids—like the boys across the street or next door—be the ones to suffer? And what of the Vietnamese civilians?

Such is the challenge for a newsman returning to Vietnam. He seeks out the story and stories that may help tell that story.

No doubt there will be many acts of heroism witnessed. Youngsters in the military service do heroic things every day. For most, it is just a matter of course.

Without question there will be plenty of tragedy to be seen, because war is a series of tragedies, this is to be expected.

God willing, the newsman and the GIs he associates with will be returning home. Then, the full story can be related—the when, how and why of this conflict.

Surely the war in Vietnam, which has been so very long, will eventually come to a conclusion.

That it ends with a just and honorable peace is perhaps the real issue to ponder in relation to this conflict and its hoped-for finale.

GI Yule Gift Deadline Set

The deadline for giving Christmas gift bags to the Red Cross for shipment to American servicemen in Vietnam has been extended to Oct. 1, one month past the date set earlier this year.

The Red Cross says improvements in mailing procedures have allowed the organization to continue its collection efforts one month closer to Christmas than expected.

Items which may be used include ball-point pens, pen-size flashlights and batteries, small penknives, windproof cigarette lighters, plastic soap cases, small packages of writing paper, pocket games, or similar personal items.

Fire Danger

Nevada Division of Forestry announced this week closure of Sierra District to foot and vehicular traffic because of extreme fire danger.

The district includes all territory west of Highway 395 north of Reno to the California line south of Minden in Douglas County.

Closure will be effective until further notice, division officials note.

Tahoe Agency Meets Sept. 18

An adjourned regular meeting of the California Tahoe Regional Planning Agency will be held at the South Lake Tahoe City Council chambers on Sept. 18 at 10 a.m.

Action is expected on proposed ordinances to regulate tree cutting, construction and waste disposal within the Lake Tahoe basin.
